Dear friends,

Welcome to the Junior League of Miami’s Spring Magazine! Just recently, I was looking for a file in my office at our Headquarters and came across a box of old JLM magazines from the 1950s and 1960s. It was such a treat to see the photos and read about our members working on community projects, advocating on behalf of our programs, and networking with civic leaders. So much has changed since then, but also, so much remains the same!

In this edition, we are delighted to share our latest news and accomplishments with you, including highlights from the 18th Annual Women Who Make A Difference luncheon, features from our community projects, a peek inside Sustainer Maria Maloof’s gorgeous home, and many other topics.

Additionally, the League is actively recruiting new members who share our passion for community service and developing the potential of women leaders. Please reach out if you or someone you know would like to join us.

It has been an honor to serve alongside the women of the Junior League of Miami over the past year.

Thank you for your commitment to our mission and support of our great community.

With gratitude,

Debbie

A MEMORABLE MOTHER’S DAY FOR FAMILIES AT ITN & ITS

More than 30 families from Inn Transition North (ITN) and Inn Transition South (ITS) were treated to a magical Mother’s Day filled with pampering, entertainment, and enjoyment. JLM volunteers transformed ITS into a retreat to celebrate the strong women who sacrificed everything to provide a better life for their children. The event featured: massage therapists, live music, a game truck, bounce houses, hot dogs and popcorn, a taco truck, ice cream lollipops, and a craft area for kids to make a picture frame with their Polaroid photo to give as a gift to their mom.

Along with JLM volunteers, 10 sorority sisters from Florida International University’s Alpha Chi Omega chapter were on hand to serve food, entertain children, and spend time with the moms. “The most wonderful thing is to see the ITS and ITN families getting more and more comfortable each time we see them,” said Anna Luthra, ITS Chair. “Many women come and hug us to say how grateful they are for the programs we provide and friendly atmosphere we create for them.”

Guests left the Mother’s Day celebration with a homemade cookie basket, smiles, and happy memories that will last a lifetime.

“Families rotate often but we get to see some of them for the entire year and how they progress with their lives and how kids grow, said Luthra. “We get to know how different their stories are and how fortunate they are to be in a safe environment.”

Upon entering the serene, tropical-themed ballroom at Jungle Island on March 8th, more than 400 guests at the 18th annual Women Who Make a Difference Luncheon were inspired by touching tributes and heartfelt testimonials. Co-chairs Monique Lavender Greenberg and Meg DeMilia, along with the WWMD committee, worked tirelessly to produce a memorable afternoon that raised more than $100,000 for JLM.

Miami-Dade County Commissioners Daniella Levine Cava and Sally Heyman animatedly read a proclamation declaring March 8th as Junior League of Miami Day and the festivities took off from there. Local 10’s Laurie Jennings emceed the event, coinciding with International Women’s Day, honoring four remarkable women who exemplify the League’s mission of promoting volunteerism, developing the potential of women and improving communities. The 2019 honorees were: Tina Brown, executive director of the Overtown Youth Center; Michelle Ramirez-Patricios, past JLM president and community activist; State Attorney Katherine Fernandez Rundle, child advocate; and Anita Uppaluri, sustainer and philanthropist.

JLM also recognized three female, high school seniors in the Miami-Dade Public School System who have exhibited superior community service involvement and high academic achievement. Miami-Dade Public Schools Superintendent Alberto Carvalho introduced two recipients of the JLM Scholarship in honor of Kathryn Menke Miller, followed by one recipient of the JLM Scholarship funded by The Uppaluri Foundation. The program concluded with powerful testimonials from one current and one past resident of Inn Transition, who shared harrowing tales of domestic violence. Both women tearfully recounted how JLM has changed their lives and those of their children through its funding and volunteer commitment at Inn Transition North and South, allowing guests to fully understand the power of women helping women through JLM. All funds raised at the luncheon benefit JLM’s programs to help women and children at risk.

A Few JLM Past Presidents
The Program Development Committee conducted its annual Community Collaboration Breakfast for community organizations and non-profits, resulting in numerous applications from community groups hoping to collaborate with JLM. Ultimately, the JLM membership voted to approve two new community projects for the 2019-2020 JLM year: Casa Valentina and Pace Center for Girls.

JLM’s partnership with Casa Valentina will place JLM volunteers with young women aging out of the foster care system and transferring into Casa Valentina’s women’s campus. The young women are given an apartment-like space, but have never had the opportunity and means to make the space their own. JLM volunteers will work closely with the young women to design and decorate their space so they can thrive.

JLM will also partner with Pace Center for Girls to develop and implement a curriculum of life skills training for the PACE students. The curriculum will likely include topics such as career skills (resume building, networking, interviewing, etc.), college preparedness, and health and wellness. PACE was founded in 1985 and serves as a corrective step to help girls get back on track to avoid the criminal justice system.

This spring, the Inn Transition South (ITS) playground got a makeover thanks to a grant from the UPS Foundation. Marcia Koo, a member of JLM and a UPS employee, won the grant. In an interview with Koo she said, “As a past co-chair of ITS I know there is always a need to help out the families there. The children at ITS deserve a safe and happy playground. I am very grateful that, as a UPS employee, I was able to give back.”

The UPS Foundation mission statement is to respond to the world’s most pressing social, environmental, and humanitarian needs.

COMMITTEE NEWS

JLM hit the road with a bus full of actives, sustainers, new members, and prospective members. The community bus tour started with breakfast at Headquarters, followed by a stop at Casa Valentina (a 2019-2020 JLM project), where guests were treated to a tour and overview of the organization.

“The stop at ITS was long and meaningful,” organizer Alex Lalos said, “It was worth spending extra time there so that bus tour participants could really get a feel for what JLM does.”

The tour was both educational and fun, and gave participants a glimpse at how JLM’s work benefits women and children in the community.

Q&A WITH A TRANSFER, SUSTAINER & ACTIVE

MONIQUE PARDO
TRANSFER

Welcome to the MIA! Help us get to know you!
Describe yourself in five words.
Empathetic, Generous, Enthusiastic, Kind, Resourceful

Why did you move to the 305?
After spending the last 10 years in the northeast working long hours on Wall Street and enduring unbearably cold winters, I decided it was time to turn in my parka, shed some layers, and transition my career path back towards the practice of law. I’ve lived in California, Texas, Connecticut, and New York, and NOTHING compares to being back home in Florida!

What are you most excited to do in the Magic City?
To make up for lost time - cafecitos, croquetas, boat days, golf… anything that involves delicious Cuban food and plenty of outdoors/sunshine!

JODIE WILMOTH ACTIVE

What has been your favorite project to work on with JLM and why?
Definitely working with the residents of Inn Transition. Last year my placement was with ITN. To experience the joy and excitement on the faces of the mothers and children every time we [the volunteers] were with them was awesome!

I remember taking the families on a field trip to a nearby park with a man-made beach and one of the mothers being overjoyed to have her toes in the sand and go into the water. I found out that she had never been to a beach! The thought of that was mind blowing, but interestingly the reality for many in some of our Miami neighborhoods. I was so happy to see her experience this for the first time with her son.

I’m so proud to be part of an organization that brings not only support and fun activities to these families in need, but also exposure to a world outside of what some of them know.

How do you balance the League with your personal and professional life?
My method for balance is to plan in advance… as much as possible. For example, I live and mostly work from home in North Bay Village (NE Miami); to get to events/meetings in the Gables by 6 or 7pm on a workday is a challenge to say the least. Instead, when possible I make plans to attend area general membership meetings and virtual trainings.

What are your favorite things to do outside the League?
TRAVEL! I love visiting new countries and experiencing different cultures. I enjoy learning about other people’s way of life, the things they are proud of as a people, and the current issues they face. Of course, taking part in local cuisine is a must. My goal is to visit 40 countries by the age of 40. So far I’ve visited 26… 24 countries and six years to go!

VICKY HUCKS
SUSTAINER

What is your fondest memory of Junior League?
This is a hard one. I was extremely active for so many years and met some of my closest friends in the League. However, my fondest memory was when I was the provisional co-chair and we organized a family fun day at ITS. Watching the mothers see pure joy in their children’s eyes. It was a fabulous day!

What words of wisdom do you have for the ladies of JLM?
I know that we are pulled in every direction - work, family, other volunteer responsibilities. However, the age old phrase is true… the more you give, the more you receive. Get as involved as you allow. Not only will you help those less fortunate and make a REAL change in others, but you will build lifelong friendships based on a common desire to help others.

What is your favorite thing about Miami?
It is really easy to take our home for granted. However, recently I spent the afternoon kayaking in Oleta State Park. I was born and raised in Miami and had never been. It truly is a piece of paradise.
"I am not afraid to be bold," said Maloof. "The house is a reflection of how we live our life so it is filled with things that we are passionate about.

Maloof had a vision when her husband, Al, and she purchased the acreage on Ponce de Leon Road in 2014. They wanted to build a home that their family could grow into. A home to celebrate milestones for their young sons, Richard (13) and George (9) and to build cherished memories with older son Albert (29), who is marrying next month. After nearly three years, their vision became a 7,600 square-foot, six-bedroom, five-and-a-half-bathroom reality.
“IT SHOWCASES MY ECLECTIC SIDE,” SAID MALOOF. “I WANTED A HOME THAT WAS UNIQUE TO MIAMI. IT’S A FRENCH VIBE MEETS HOLLYWOOD GLAMOUR WITH A LITTLE PALM BEACH.” SAID MALOOF.

Maria Maloof in her master suite.

It’s hard to imagine that Maloof, who says her favorite colors are purple and pink, spent four active and two reserve years in the U.S. Marine Corps. She said, “Even in the Marines I managed to push convention and personalize my space in my last year in the Corps. I know my unit leaders did not know how to handle me. I had a pink, flowery bedspread in the barracks! Any variation of a pink hue makes me happy and I want to be surrounded by color, people, and things that evoke happiness.” The purple reflected in her home reminds her of her paternal grandmother, Priscilla, and also the namesake of Maloof’s sister, Priscilla Rettig, who is currently active in Junior League of Miami (JLM). “My grandmother and her sister had a lavender and white decorated tea room called ‘The Unicorn Tea Room’ so purple brings back such loving, warm, fond memories of two ladies dining on tea sandwiches and fanciful desserts in their marvelously appointed venue.”

The first person to call to make it happen: Maloof’s friend and design mentor, Kim Hernandez of The Gallery Interiors. Hernandez, a two-time JLM Showhouse designer, worked side-by-side with architect Nelson de Leon of Locus Architecture to envision the space. “I think about how the family wants to live and entertain,” said Hernandez. “I got involved at the start to help with everything from layout design to light switch placement.”

Ultimate creatives, the pair fed off each other during the process. “Maria is never predictable and won’t color inside the lines. She was open to having totally different spaces – different fixtures, marble and colored bathrooms, a black kitchen – you name it and she was open to it.” Along with custom wallpapers and draperies, Maloof added her own touch to the home: 20+ original abstract acrylic paintings that she created in her studio (a.k.a the garage). The artwork of all shapes and sizes complements walls in her family room, dining room, stairway, hallways, and more. “Painting is my newly developed and explored creative outlet,” Maloof says. “And it doesn’t hurt that I paint pieces that reflect the emotion and palette that I want in a space.”

An active mom, event planner, philanthropist, and volunteer, one room was especially significant to Maloof. An inspiring home office to dream up her newest endeavor: a non-profit called Comfort Crusaders. Developed with her sons, Comfort Crusaders aims to provide hands-on volunteer experience to kids of all ages, fostering a culture of giving back. As a former vice president of development, including Chair of a number of fundraisers and committees for JLM, Maloof credits JLM with giving her the platform to build upon her leadership and advocacy skills. “I never would have come up with Comfort Crusaders without the training I received from JLM,” said Maloof. She also took that JLM training to Kristi House where she served on their Board of Directors for four years, serving as their Development Chair, including chairing the organization’s annual gala for five years, doubling the event’s fundraising revenue alongside dear friend, Kara Zeder.

“It’s all about passion. Whether it’s artwork, charity work, or design – you have to believe in what you’re doing, and chase after your goals with fierce, unabashed determination,” said Maloof.

Three years after construction concluded, Maloof and Hernandez are still perfecting the finishing touches on the interiors. Hernandez stresses the importance of living in the space before decorating it fully. “Design is worth waiting for,” said Hernandez. “You may change your mind once you spend time in the space. If you rush it, the home will end up looking flat.” And there is one more project yet to come: a spacious outdoor retreat complete with pool, cabana, summer kitchen, and guest quarters, breaking ground in summer 2019.

The most important part of Maloof’s home is already complete: her family. “Without them, the beautiful home my husband, Al and I have built would just be an empty shell no matter how fabulously decorated.”

“Given my male-dominated home with my husband, sons, and shih-ztu, I absolutely love to retreat and spend time in my dressing room. It’s the epitome of femininity and is the only space that is entirely mine where I may have my moments of solitude to recharge and daydream.”

The Junior League of Miami Foundation hosted the annual Wine Walk on Thursday, February 7, 2019. More than 120 fabulous attendees gathered at the private home and garden estate of past JLM President Jayne Harris Abbess and her husband Leonard, for a night of beautiful views, delicious fare and unique wine, courtesy of Joanna’s Marketplace. Co-Chairs Sarita Courtney-Baigorri and Ashley Cusack organized the event, which also included a short talk by historian Dr. Paul George and a raffle. Highlights of the evening included the specimen gardens enhanced by contemporary art.

The Junior League of Miami Foundation has assets of $1.75 million, they have a goal of raising $2 million. The Foundation solely funds Junior League of Miami programs. At the annual meeting this year, the Foundation plans to donate $28,259.29 to the League!

The JLM Sustainer Book Club meets monthly from September to May to discuss thought-provoking reads chosen by its 20 or so members at every May meeting. January 2019’s book club selection was Loyalty by Ingrid Thoft. Thoft is a college classmate of Sustainer Aniella Gonzalez, who arranged a private evening Skype session with the author at EWM Realty International’s Alhambra office. Thoft was thrilled to visit with JLM’s sustainers from her home in Seattle.

Loyalty is the first of four critically acclaimed novels starring heroine, Fina Ludlow, a tough, funny and flawed private investigator. The series of novels is set in Boston, Massachusetts, Thoft’s hometown, and follows Ludlow and her family, led by a patriarchal personal injury attorney. Thoft shared that prior to writing the novel she undertook private investigative training at the University of Washington, which helped her give a first-hand feel for the crime novel genre. The Skype format supported lively conversation about the characters, the dynamics of the Ludlow family and their development throughout the novel and the series.

For a group of avid readers, it was fascinating to hear about how Ingrid began writing in the mystery-crime fiction genre, learning about Thoft’s current project (something beyond the Ludlow series) and the books she is currently reading.
